that he'd be fired from his job and be hooted out of town.

"Welch was an ingenious man, but he worked and studied for three weeks without turning anything up. Then one day his idea came to him.

"Central and southerly Texas was being torn up at the time by a road agent named Sam Bolo, who was the smoothest artist that Texas had produced in a long time. One day he'd clean out a bank in some big town, and by the time the officers had him all but run down he'd be holding up a mail train 100 miles or so in the other direction.

"One day a stranger came into Alrah's office and asked for five minutes' orivate conversation. The man looked important and scared. There was no reason Alvah should have known that his visitor was Welch's brother-in-law from over Leon Way.

Visitor was Weich's brother-in-iaw mover Leon Way.

'Say,' said the man in a whisper, 'I s in the Santa Fe hold-up. I seen to in town this afternoon. Don't or I'm a dead man,' Alvah got up and locked the door, en the man talked and Alvah askel estions.

"If it's all straight," said Alvah, finally, 'I'll divvy the $34,000 reward
